WANT TEACHERS' PAY INCREASED

Association for Advancement of Colored People Seek "Fair Play."

Immediately upon the assembling of the Sixty-sixth Congress an appeal will be made by the District of Columbia Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in behalf of "the neglected children of Washington."

The committee have prepared memorandum which will be presented to the House and Senate without delay. It will be shown that while the school bill introduced in the late Congress contains no item under the heading of "Buildings and Grounds," except $25,000 for portable schools, the estimates of the Board of Education "do not ask for one single dollar for the buildings and grounds of the colored public schools."

It will be cited that the colored population of the District of Columbia is approximately one-third of the total population and that "all sections of the colored community are agitated over the salaries received by certain officers in their schools."

A colored superintendent for colored school janitors is asked for and the appeal concludes with this paragraph: "As long as colored children here are forced to attend separate public schools it is indispensable that all their teachers and all their supervisory and administrative officers be colored men and women. Let the autonomy of these separate schools, as fixed by the organic law, be preserved inviolate."

This Sea Lion Can Certainly Swim, What Boy or Girl Has a Name for Him?

He Didn't Treat Mamma Very Nice, But Maybe He's Jealous.

We tried to get a picture of Mrs. Sea Lion to run in this column today, but Mr. Sea Lion wouldn't let us. "Not much," he growled. "If any member of this family is going to get their picture in the paper, it's going to be me. Anyway, Mrs. Sea Lion is not half so big and handsome as I am, and your readers would much rather see me."

Mrs. Sea Lion herself didn't seem to have much to say about the matter, and only blinked her soft brown eyes at us from the top of the pile of rocks where she was taking a sun bath.

Rest on Rocks.

"The only thing she likes to do," continued her irate spouse, "is to rest on those rocks and watch me swimming around in the pool. But I'll get her down," and he made a dippy rush up the rocks and violently knocked poor Mrs. Sea Lion off her perch. However, after swimming around the pool a few times, she climbed back and settled herself again for her afternoon nap in the sun.

"Just like her," declared the sea lion in disgust, "but you watch me if you want to see some real swimming," and he dived into the water, to appear a few seconds later at the other end of the pool.

"How's that?" he asked modestly, and turned a flip-flop backward into the water again, coming up at the photographer's feet, blowing and puffing.

Assuring him that he was the champion swimmer of the Zoological Park, the photographer snapped his picture, just as he raised himself from the water, and left the cage promising the sea lion that the children of Washington would select him a suitable and appropriate name.

Eleven-year-old Hattie Wase, 1420 Thirty-third street northwest, agrees with the llama in not wanting to be called a floor mop after the glorious days in its native mountains, and suggests that he be called "Billy the Mountaineer," in memory of his mountains.

Read what the people who work for you have to say to you

The manufacturer who makes your shoes is working for you. The store that sells you shoes is working for you. So is your grocer and baker and gas company and clothier and every person who makes or sells anything that you buy.

Quite often these people have messages for you. They want to tell you about new goods or changes in styles and prices or give you other information.

It is not practical for them to come and speak to you personally because they have too many customers to serve. So they put their messages in advertisements in your daily newspaper.

It is to your interest to read advertisements. They are published for your benefit. Advertisements keep you informed as to what manufacturers and merchants are doing for you. They help you to buy the right goods at the right time and make the most of your money.

You'll find that business concerns which tell you frankly what they are doing are most to be depended upon. Stores that advertise are progressive stores that have something really worth while to say to you. Manufacturers who advertise their goods have confidence in them; it does not pay to advertise anything that is not good.

Make a habit of reading advertisements. It is interesting as well as profitable.

RED CROSS SPENT $107,716,348 IN 1919

Expenditures of the Red Cross during the year ended June 30, 1919, totaled $107,716,348, according to its annual report.

Of this, $64,734,229 went for relief in foreign countries; $7,668,856 for work in the United States, and the remainder was set aside for working capital.

The report has already been submitted to Secretary of War Baker, who, under the provisions of the Red Cross charter, will present it to Congress.
